Senior Site Engineer Guernsey, Channel Islands

Enjoy the best of both worlds – working on great projects, in a beautiful island location, with an excellent lifestyle.

Guernsey is the second largest of the Channel Islands and less than an hour's flight from London or Southampton. It is renowned for its natural beauty and offers an excellent quality of life.

Rihoy & Son is one of Guernsey's longest-established building contractors, employing more than 150 staff and involved with many of the island's most prestigious developments.

We are seeking to recruit a Senior Site Engineer to work with our experienced site management teams, ensuring projects are completed on time, on budget, and to our high standards of quality.

Previous site experience of at least five years on a broad range of projects is essential, including residential, commercial and domestic.

The candidate should have a thorough knowledge of all foundation solutions, RC structures, traditional blockwork and brickwork, steel frames, drainage and services installations, and hard landscaping. HNC/HND qualifications or a Degree in a construction based course is required as a minimum, with further training being supported.

A relocation package would also be offered to the right candidate.
